

Take Your Company to New Heights with ActivTrak

Using ActivTrak's user behavior analytics service, Biorev is able to become operationally profitable and ensure productivity meets business expectations

Executive Summary

A startup with cutting edge technology wanted to implement Six-sigma Lean Methodology in their process on a key project. In order to do so, Biorev, LLC implemented ActivTrak's software to gain control over their remote workforce productivity, increase focus during projects, and block distracting websites to keep team productivity high, and overall business flowing smoothly. With ActivTrak's easy-to-use monitoring suite, Biorev can monitor productivity to ensure business goals are met.

to a new level. Providing multiple services for a variety of large companies internationally from the construction industry to technology spaces, Biorev has zero space for errors, and less to correct them.

The Challenge

Executive VP of Media and Digital Marketing, Sagar Gupta, contacted ActivTrak with a mission to improve his company's performance, unfavorable team productivity, and to eliminate repeated errors on completed projects.

Given that his entire team was working remotely (either from home or their Offshore Indian Offices), Sagar realized he did not have a detailed understanding of what was being done during working hours, which resulted in numerous errors in projects completed.

With Biorev trying to implement Six-sigma Lean Methodology in their process on a key project, Sagar wanted a solution that would give him complete control over his employee activities to ensure they're dedicated to their work, and not making those same errors.

After preliminary research, Biorev came to find that many monitoring services come equipped with unnecessary features, which made the products complicated to use, and much more expensive than they could justify. Sagar realized these additional details provided little-to-no value in helping him solve his problem.

As a startup, Biorev couldn't justify paying hefty costs on a limited budget for unnecessary feature packages that didn't directly address his clear, immediate issues.

The Solution

After just over a week of using the free trial to test the software, Biorev decided to move forward with implementing ActivTrak across the entire company. The upgrade process was quick and painless – Sagar even managed to negotiate an extra agent free of charge!

Sagar soon realized that ActivTrak is truly a plug and play software, as he easily installed the tracking agent on every computer in his company, and configured all settings in under two hours. Once the data began to collect, Sagar knew ActivTrak was the answer Biorev had been looking for.

Specifically, Biorev loved the ability to label the productive value of activities, and block unproductive websites to keep employees on-task and focused. With ActivTrak, Biorev was back in complete control, and on top of their employee activity.

Success Story

In less than a month, Sagar saw a complete turn-around in his team's productivity, and increased operational profitability.

That key project where Biorev implemented ActivTrak actually won the company "Best Home Technology Product" at the NAHB 2017 International Builders' Show® (IBS), because they were able to finish their projects on-time, free of errors and at the superior level of quality expected by both Sagar and Biorev as a whole.

All of Biorev's computers are currently paired with ActivTrak's agents. Biorev plans to use ActivTrak on every computer for every employee for the foreseeable future.

ActivTrak was simply plug and play, believe it or not. It took me 2-3 mins per machine to get started and overall took me 1 hour to block all the unnecessary sites. In no time, I was ruling the entire thing, and was on top of my employees activity.
